ICE FAMINE POSSIBLE

REPORTS FROM THE NORTH ARE NOT ENCOURAGING.

Reports being received by local dealers from the ice fields in northern New York and in Maine are not very encouraging, and it is stated that the outlook now is for a very serious shortage in the ice supply during the coming summer. Two weeks ago, when there was a spell of ice-making weather, the reports received were very encouraging, as it was stated there was a good field of ice in sight and that it was making and there was every prospect with a continuation of cold weather, for a fair crop of ice, and that there would be no serious shortage.

The cold weather did not continue, however, and the information the ice men here have received is that a very small crop will be harvested and that even with the ice plants in all the big cities at work to the full capacity there will be a serious shortage. From the Maine ice fields on the Kennebec and Penobscot rivers and on the upper part of the Hudson is received more than half the supply of ice in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore and all the other cities on the Atlantic, and with of consequence in sight on these fields, and with but little prospect of it making this late in the season, it is stated that the outlook is serious.

In this city the ice men say they are in better shape for the storage of ice than in most places, but with the local ice plants working to their capacity and with a por-tion of the usual supply from the north there will be a shortage in the supply here. If winter will linger in the north and a March freeze comes, as is not unlikely, all

Y. M. C. A MEETING.

Two Addresses at Belasco Theater Yesterday Afternoon.

Bishop Vincent of the Methodist Episcopal Church and V. W. Helm, one of the general Y. M. C. A. secretaries, delivered addresses yesterday afternoon at the big men's meeting in the Belasco Theater. The "Ways of Doing Good" was Bishop Vincent's theme. He said he was sorry so many people could find no better way to help their fe'low-men than by donating money. The right use of the power of suffrage, he held, was the a bicycle upon a pile of coal near 12th and streets last night about 9 o'clock. He zen of the nation. He touched lightly upon the questions of the day by saying that justice of employers to employes would result in good all over the country. He believed that Christianity applied 365 days in the year would settle all economical questions as well as spiritual problems.

The great advance of Christianity in Japan was the subject upon which Mi-Helm dwelt at length. There is an oppor-tunity, he said, for Christian workers to make an impression on the people there through the soldiers. He said a large number of Y. M. C. A. secretaries are stationed at Dalny and are preaching the gospel to thousands of soldiers as they pass through that place on their homeward march. He believed the fact that hundreds of thousands of letters were written back home by the soldiers on Y. M. C. A. stationery had created a better feeling in the minds of the people of Japan toward the organization and would render the spread of Christianity in the empire more rapid.

Preparations for the dedication exercise of the new Business High School at noon tomorrow are about completed. The building is being appropriately decorated and the assembly hall provided with seats. will be provided for a large number of gregations in the outlying suburbs. guests who are expected. The program of the official exercises, as previously published in The Star, will be carried out.

The reunion of the alumnal association will take on an exceptional character and will be made the event of the day. A banquet will be served at 7:30 in the gymnasium. The District Commissioners members of the board of education and representatives of the Board of Trade and the Business Men's Association will be present. At least 300 of the alumni are expected to participate.

The committee on school interest, which under Mr. Paul E. Sleman did such good work in securing the new building; the president of the association, Mr. Charles A. Jones, and the ex-president, Mr. James E. West, have labored with unflagging zeal to make the reunion this year such an event that every one of the 1,400 graduates of the school will take an active part in the future in promoting the interests of commercial education. It is for that purcommercial education. It is for that purpose that they invited Mr. Robert C. Ogden of New York to speak for them.

GREEK MARRIED GREEK

AT WEDDING YESTERDAY.

Mid the chanting of quaint prayers Stephen Chaconas and Miss Helen M. Skiados were married according to the custom of the Greek Church in Concordia Hall yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Rev. Jociun Alexopoulos, the Greek priest who has just arrived in this city from Athens, officiated. The bride, handsomely dressed in white crepe de chine, was accompanied by the bridegroom, they taking a seat in the front part and bowing and smiling. It seemed like a jolly party, because each person present apparently was well acquainted with the others. When the priest appeared in the midst of the assemblage he wore a brilliant scarlet robe, with a gold cross upon his breast. Upon his head was a tall hat, something like a hishon's miter. From this head gard. like a bishop's miter. From this headgear a long, black crepe veil hung. The cere-mony was in Greek, and so all, with the exception of the small group of guests of other nationalities, knew full well what was going on. Each of these surmised that the priest was telling the bridegroom to always love and cherish his wife, and later, when he turned to the bride, they supposed he said that she should love, honor and obey the man of her choice. She must have enjoyed hearing the last word, for as he closed with the word a smile appeared on her face. Some said that she was told of subjection, dependence, obedience and loyalty, and that in all cases she must abide by the decision of her husband.

Gus Dracos was the best man, and together with the other attendants chanted nearly as much as the priest. The latter placed a wreath upon the heads of the contracting parties, which the best man kept changing until the ribbon that bound them together was very much entwined.

Was a Ring Wedding.

It was a ring wedding, as some would say, but in this case there were two rings. The bride's father furnished the one for the bridegroom and the bride received the bridegroom and the bride feeter there is from the bridegroom's father. This signified the union of the two families. The bride did the placing upon the finger of the groom and then placed her ring upon her own hand.

Both bride and groom were given a teaspectful of wine after which the priest.

spoonful of wine, after which the priest, leading, a march with lighted candles around the table which had served for an altar was in order. Every Greek in the house stood up, and rice by the handful was thrown upon the bridal party. It seemed like a miniature bombardment, for in a moment pieces of candy about an inch long began flying from a very section. inch long began flying from every section of the house.

The wedding party did not seem to mind in the least, and even the priest, as he would dodge a particularly large piece of candy, would allow a smile to flit across his countenance. At last the march ended and the priest held up his hand for the guests to stop throwing. The bride and groom then stop throwing. The bride and groom then kissed the hand of the priest and they were man and wife. The bride shook the candy from her hair and the wedding reception began. Each guest passing in front of the happy couple, after depositing one dollar for the priest, kissed both upon the cheeks and the kisses the bride received were not of a perfunctory nature. One interesting feature of the occasion was the singling out by the guests of sev-eral couples in attendance and the pelting of the man with candy. The reason advanced for this was to urge the man to press his suit, for, in the opinion of thos throwing, he did not seem to be as earnest as they expected. The girls with the various men seemed to enjoy the incidents.

Birthday Gift to Pastor. As a birthday remembrance a gold watch was presented to Rev. Mr. A. W. Hughes, pastor of the Brentwood M. E. Church, at a reception to him and his family last Friday night at the church. Rev. Mr. Hughes has been pastor of the church for three years,
